

Building Engineer

Having honed your engineering skills and knowledge of building regulations, building design and construction procedures through related experience, you see this role with the City of Hamilton as an exciting opportunity to make your contribution to a dynamic city.

As a Building Engineer, you will examine and review permit plans and specifications for conformity with the Ontario Building Code, Zoning bylaw, Building bylaw and other applicable laws. This will see you examining and analyzing structural systems, life support systems, including smoke control measure, building services and fire suppression systems. We will also count on you for expertise, as you advise and assist design professionals in the design of buildings by engaging in preliminary design discussions and providing technical design information, materials evaluation and code interpretation.

Your qualifications for the role of Building Engineer include:

- Bachelor of Engineering from a recognized university, eligibility for designation as a Professional Engineer in Ontario, and related work experience
- Registration with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs qualification and registration program under the Ontario Building Code Act as a “Building Official - Inspector” practitioner with the following qualification categories:
 - General Legal/Process
 - Small Buildings
 - Complex Buildings
 - Building Services
 - Building Structural
 - Plumbing All Buildings
 - On-Site Sewage Systems
- Experience in Building Code administration and plan review
- Significant knowledge of building regulations and construction procedures
- A construction background in field techniques and modern construction practices and/or formal building design experience
- Demonstrated ability to organize and prioritize workloads
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills combined with the ability to work with diverse groups to reach solutions.

This permanent, full-time position offers a salary range of $86,517 to $101,186 per annum (based on a 35-hour work week schedule).
